My whole, although an useful fruit. We neither bake nor boil; But you ll be put in mind of it, By corn, and wine, and oil. My first is a thing of the quadruped kind, But whether domestic or wild, A guesser of charades will easily find; And it often is seen with a child. My seconds a vowel, which you must find out; My third is composed of a bone: Yet the tusk which is known to be polished and stout, In this third has been frequently known. My wholes the cessation of sorrow and care, Where the weary will always find rest; And oft has it proved a relief to despair, Which arose from the griefs of the breast. CHARADE XXXI. If, ladies, ye my first would know, You ll find me in a gentle blow; All accountants claim my second--A number--His by them oft reckond: My whole, ye fair, oft lends its aid, In dirty weather to the maid. CHARADE XXXII. My first is equality; my second is inferiority; my whole is superiority. CHARADE XXXIII. Attractive first, whose power all hearts obey, Whether in milder or more firm array, With silent eloquence thou rt often seen, In black, or blue, or grey, but never green. --Degrading next! By tyrants only used, With which both brutes and slaves are oft abused; The wise and good despise thy stern control--They govern by my first each willing soul. --My...
